LOBBY LOUNGE

Centered on reception / leisure

The lobby space is the space for external personnel to produce the first impression when they enter the company. The relaxed atmosphere can give people a good first impression. The lobby space with negotiation as the center and the lobby furniture combination with coffee table as the center are suitable for more formal negotiation and communication. This combination also ensures a certain degree of communication privacy.

PUBLIC AREA

Leisure public space

Users can work in an environment that is satisfied and suitable for the current work content without interference, supporting relaxation, leisure and transforming work ideas and sitting postures.

Conventional layout in public areas

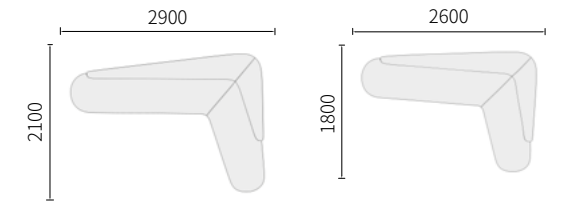

Refuse to be dull and uninteresting, visual C-position

Lines are the code of art, perfectly interpreting the personality and beauty of space. There are two styles, freehand style and seated style, with straight lines and clean and powerful lines, presenting pure and rational beauty, forming a decisive and direct visual experience, creating a minimalist, creative, and efficient space.

MANAGER AREA

Director's office

Closed private offices for managers. According to the functional characteristics, the relatively open staff area is more closed and independent. The work content is highly autonomous and does not require much interaction. The executive office located deep in the space is separated from the conference table by a wall, forming a relatively private and quiet space, while allowing people to think independently or share office work.
